ADHD in Preschool Age Children What Do They Look Like and How Can We Help?

Presented by Dr. Glen Elliott

Designed for FIRST 5 Partners and other Local Professionals

April 22nd, 2015
9:00 a.m. – 12:00 p.m.

Dr. Elliott, the Chief Psychiatrist and Medical Director of the Children's Health Council, will be giving an incredibly engaging presentation on ADHD in preschool age children. Dr. Elliott will be describing the ways in which Attention-Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) may present in preschoolers, other problems that may look like ADHD in this age group but are not, and steps parents and caregivers can take in minimizing the effects of behavioral disruptions these children often experience.

Dr. Elliott is a child and adolescent psychiatrist with a longstanding interest in normal development and in common behavioral disorders of childhood and adolescence. He has been studying and working with children who have Attention-Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) since the late 1980's. In 2005, he authored Medicating Young Minds, a book for parents facing the difficult decision of using medications for children with severe behavioral problems. Dr. Elliott was Director of The Children's Center at Langley Porter at UCSF from 1989 until retiring in 2006 as an Emeritus Professor of Clinical Psychiatry. Since then, he has been at the Children's Health Council (CHC) serving as Chief Psychiatrist and Medical Director. He also is a Professor of Clinical Psychiatry (Affiliated) in the Stanford School of Medicine Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences and Associate Director of Training for Stanford's Child and Adolescent Psychiatry Program.

This training is free. Pre-registration is required. Certificates of attendance are issued for LMFTs, LCSWs indicating hours earned against the Infant-Family Early Childhood Mental Health Guidelines.
